

GENS 210 : Science, Technology, and Society

The course is an historical examination of the effects of scientific and technological innovations upon various societies, with emphasis being placed upon technology and science of the western world since 1850.

Credits 3.0