CPSC 330 : Computer Organization and Assembly Language

This course is a study of applications of Boolean algebra to combinational circuit design problems, organization of simplified computer components, memory organization, architecture, and assembly language programming.
Credits 4.0
Prerequisites
CPSC 152 or the equivalent.