

PSYC 231 : Gerontology

This course is a study of gerontology. Topics include the biological, cognitive, and psychosocial influences on aging. The interactions of the aging individual, younger generations, and society is examined. Students learn about current literature and social policy.

Credits 3.0