

EDUC 683 : Methods and Materials in Secondary Education: Physical Life Sciences

This is a series of courses which address issues related to methods and materials for various areas of secondary education. The classes include interactive class time, electronic learning, certificate-specific meetings and activities, and independent study. Instruction will be provided through relevant discussion of the experiences of professional educators related to the specific area of education.

Credits 3.0